Super Mario Maccabiah Rocks Camp Wise

by Noah Sussman
Brandon Klein

This year's Maccabiah was Super Mario Maccabiah. It was a great maccabiah with exciting moments and great judges. Luigi was the winner this year. They had great spirit, cheers, and athletics. The green team won soccer, volleyball, and spirit points. These events helped them win 2009 trip I maccabiah.

Campers enjoy the talent show

Camp Wise's Got Talent

by Sam Spear

The camp talent show was a great success. Artists of all kinds showcased their special talents by performing original music, dancing, singing, acting, and playing an instrument. Staff members, SITs and campers all enjoyed and participated in this camp tradition.

Even though the event was fun as always, there was a disappointment. The famous "Bean Skit" was not performed this year.

Regardless, the Camp Wise talent show was a fun time to share talent with the rest of camp.

4th of July Soccer Game Recap

by Noah Sussman and Brandon Klein

Saturday July 4th was a epic battle between the international staff and the Americans. Everyone in the game, watching the game, and anyone who wasn't watching new one thing. There's a winner.

On the international team, they had Brits, Israelis and Aussies. Outstanding soccer players battled for an hour and the victor was the international team. Idan Porat was the MVP with two goals and a great celebration at the end of a goal. A standing backflip! Since the final score was 3-1, there had to be another scorer on the international team. It was our Camp Wise soccer specialist Jamie with the first goal of the game. He also did a hilarious celebration with a slide in the mud. Another great of the game was Adam Murphy who didn't have a goal but was an excellent passer and striker.

Onto the USA side, coached by Jordan Marks, a counselor in O-5. The U.S. team consisted of Andrew Mann, Jeff Greenwald, and some Mexican kitchen staff. The scorer on the U.S. team was Jeff Greenwald on a great save on a block by the goalie. He kicks the ball into the goal and the crowd goes wild. We celebrated that night with a big carnival and it was a great fourth of July.

Cavs Lineup

by Noah Sussman

We got Shaq – the Cleveland Cavaliers recently signed Shaquille O'neal, a massive center from the Phoenix Suns. The Cavs negotiated a 1 year contract with Shaq, and hopefully he will resign. This addition to the Cleveland Cavs wil help them make it to the championship game.

Draft Results – The Cavs drafted a solid power forward named Danny Green from North Carolina. He helped lead the Tar Heels to a National Championship. With him, LeBron, Mo Williams and Shaq, they will be a big threat to the NBA.

Sophie's Book Review

Maximum Ride: The Angel Experiment

By Sophie Alter

Have you read Maximum Ride: The Angel Experiment? It's written by James Patterson and copyrighted in 2005.

Maximum Ride: The Angel Experiment is the 1st book in the Maximum Ride series of 5. The series is about a flock of 98% human 2% avian, or bird, hybrids named Max, Fang, Iggy, Nudge, the Gasman, and Angel. They grew up in dog crates in a lab called The School.

In this book, a good scientist named Jeb Batchelder helps them escape and they live in hiding for 4 years without anyone finding them. One day, Jeb goes out for groceries and disappears. After that, everything goes downhill. The Erasers, human-lupine-wolf hybrids from The School discover their hideout and capture Angel, the youngest, and take her back to The School for very harmful experiments. Max decides that her mission is to rescue Angel.

On the way, she gets sidetracked. She sees a girl in danger by some bullies with guns. Max goes down and helps the girl, apparently named Ella, but gets shot. Thankfully, she finds Ella's house and Ella's mom is a vet. Oh, the irony! Ella's mom helps Max and Max stays with them for a few days. Then she meets up with Fang and Nudge and they rescue Angel. When they are hiding in a cave with hawks, Iggy and Gazy catch up with them and Angel tells them about an institute in New York City. There, they can find information about their parents, who they never knew. They decide to head to New York. There, they encountered many Erasers, including the worst one. Air, Jeb's son who they "eraserfied." Eventually, they get to the Institute of Higher Living and find a lot of information. They also set all of the other mutants free, and Angel kept a small black Scottie named Toral. In the end, they all head to Washington D.C. to start finding their parents.

This book was great and I recommend it to anyone who likes a great page-turner and an amazing novel.

Riddles

By: Kendall Yulish

1. A man is trapped in a room. There are two possible exits. The first one is he can go through a door made from magnifying glass where the sun can fry anything or anyone. The second door has a living fire breathing dragon. How does he escape?
2. A man's car breaks down and there is not a gas station in miles. He sees a mansion. The power out, he goes in anyways. He climbs up the stair to an attic. In the attic there is a man holding a gun. The man holding the gun asks, "would you rather be killed by getting shot, short and easy, or would you rather be killed by the electric chair? Choose your fate. Why did you choose that?"
3. You are driving a bus. Ten people get on and two people get off. You get to the next stop and nobody gets off, but one person gets on. What's the bus driver's name and how old is the bus driver?

There are 2 muffins baking in an oven. The first muffin said, "boy it's hot in here." The second one said, "oh my gosh! A talking muffin!"

Embarrassing Stories

Once while I was at a skating rink, I started to skate and I saw all girls, so I realized that it was a all girls skate, but I saw another boy there so I told him that it was a all girls skate. It turns out that guy was a girl. -Unknown

While I was walking to Speedway to get a soda, I saw a lot of people laughing. I didn't know if they were laughing at me so I kept walking. I bent down to get my soda and then I went to pay. After I paid, the cashier said, "your pants are ripped." I was embarrassed cause my underwear was Dora. -Molly Teeth

I was horseback riding and while I was posting my pants started to fall. They fell off to my knees and three boys were behind me. Yikes! -Samara I O-8
