Fall 2012 | Volume 6, No. 2

around the campfire with Sean

Hello to all of our wonderful camp families,

Is it November?! I'm already itching to get back to camp. To be honest, I don't think I have fully unpacked from this past summer. Oh well, that just makes it easier to pack for next summer! If you're like me and missing the smell of the Chadar, lounging at free swim, or "music, music, I love to sing the music" then we have the cure for you. In a few short weeks come join us for the 2012 camper reunion (information on the back page). I hope to see everyone there!

Before we talk about "what's happening" for next summer, let's take a look back on an amazing 2012 summer. Who remembers chipwiches, superhero lunch, Muppets Maccabiah, hurricane Mohican, Club Rock, Oliver, Yom Ha'Mayim (the day of water), Alice in Wonderland Maccabiah, wakeboarding down at the lake, Beauty and the Beast, Becky Sebo's incredible dance concerts, LARPing (live action role playing), 5th of July fireworks, 24 SITs heading to Israel, and my daily Olympic updates! Yes, Israel still has zero medals. Wow, what a remarkable summer! Definitely one for the record books and I look forward to topping it in 2013.

I want to take this opportunity to update you on a few items that will have a huge impact on the future of CW. By now you've heard about our need for a new infirmary. There's nothing more important than the health and safety of our camp community. Currently, we are still operating out of the same building from the original campsite in 1967. This facility no longer meets the needs of camp. That is why I'm thrilled to announce that we will be breaking ground on a new infirmary this off-season! Our plan is to have the doors open for the first day of camp in 2013. We will be holding several dedication ceremonies with more details to come. You can still make a donation towards the Camp Wise Infirmary by contacting the camp office. For those who have already graciously donated toward our infirmary project, thank you.

Many of you have heard that Jennie Post is no longer working in the Camp Wise office. After 3 years working for camp full-time (and another 3 years of being a summer supervisor), Jennie has stepped down as one of our assistant directors. Jennie's passion and dedication to Camp Wise are unsurpassed and will be truly missed throughout the year. We are happy to report that Jennie has not left the Cleveland area and can be found teaching high school science at Hawken School. We wish her the best and expect to see her back at 13164 Taylor Wells this summer in some capacity!

With this news, we have been busy searching for her replacement since July. We received an overwhelming number of resumes for the assistant director position. It took us a few months to sort through all the applicants and narrow the search to the best of the best. This past month we brought in the top candidates who had the opportunity to meet our full-time camp staff and JCC professionals. Stay tuned for the announcement of our new assistant director!

Please remember my door is always open and my cell phone is always on.

summer program highlights and new programming

Summer 2012 was one of our best ever, filled with new activities and amazing special events. Trip 1 had some wacky weather. The Noar boys conquered the storm that will forever be remembered as Hurricane Mohican. It got so hot that we brought back Yom HaMayim (Day of Water) which is a special day filled with water fun for all of camp to splash around and cool off. But the weather cooperated perfectly for Alice in Wonderland Maccabiah where the White Rabbit team leapt ahead of all the others to win. Trip 2 had some adventures of its own. We had oodles of special activities like radio broadcasts from the pool, late night activities on the ropes course, and even lunches down at the lake. But nothing was more exciting than Muppets Maccabiah. Teams Fozzy Bear, Miss Piggy, Animal, and Gonzo could not keep up with Kermit the Frog, who was the ultimate victor.

The lake has always been one of the most popular areas in camp, how could anyone resist an area complete with a water trampoline, canoes, kayaks, and waterskiing? However, this summer the lake got even better when campers brought their skills to the lake as they mastered the art of wakeboarding. This wasn't the only area where our campers shined. We also saw our very own rock stars take the stage through a partnership with Cleveland's Club Rock, a program that taught singing & performing techniques, and provided a new venue for our campers to gain confidence and self-esteem. Additionally, every Saturday we welcomed special visitors, trainers from the Mandel JCC's fitness department, who came to lead CW Fit Club. Campers and staff participated in boot camp activities and learned more about living a healthy lifestyle. Other highlights from both sessions include our very first CW Dance Concert with performances from all age groups and our amazing CW Olympics held by our sports staff where campers had the opportunity to participate in unique activities like aqua aerobics and a triathlon. ★

cornerstone fellows

– Jenna Eisenberg

This past summer at Camp Wise I was part of a special program called Cornerstone. As a Cornerstone Fellow, I was invited to attend a four day conference where I learned from other Jewish professionals how to enhance Jewish programming at camp. Most importantly, we were able to work with and learn from other Jewish overnight camps across the country. It was a great learning experience being able to compare and contrast camp activities and traditions with each other. At the Cornerstone conference, I attended a variety of sessions, including ones on Tisha B'av programming, camp traditions, incorporating Jewish rituals into camp life, and many more. We brought many of the program ideas back to camp, and incorporated them in our weekly camp-wide Mishpachot (Family) program, Israel Nights, and camp-wide evening programs centered on Jewish life cycle events and holidays. It was a very rewarding experience to be able to take the ideas from the conference, plan programs with the other Cornerstone Fellows, and see the programs actually happen.

What I learned at the Cornerstone conference and did at camp as a Cornerstone Fellow did not just stop when camp ended. The training has carried over into my life in college. I am a junior at The Ohio State University majoring in Strategic Communication and minoring in Business, and am involved in many organizations on campus. Planning Camp Wise programs that appeal to campers of all ages can be challenging. It is also challenging to work with others to plan a constructive and Jewish-focused program, gather supplies and maintain the interest of the group. At Ohio State, I plan many events for my sorority, and utilize the same teamwork skills from camp while appealing to a wide variety of people. Also, as Vice President of the Jewish Business Students Association on campus, I still use some of the program ideas from the Cornerstone conference to incorporate Jewish values into various business scenarios that we discuss at our biweekly Business Ethics brunches.

Overall, being a Cornerstone Fellow at Camp Wise was an extremely rewarding experience; I gained a lot of knowledge about Jewish programming and found new ways to "think outside the box." Even though that sounds cliché, it's true. The information I acquired from being a Cornerstone Fellow is definitely something that will stay with me in future years, whether working at camp or in activities at school. Attending the Cornerstone conference and being a Fellow at camp made the summer truly memorable for me, and I would highly encourage anyone who has the opportunity to attend the Cornerstone conference and become a Fellow to take advantage of this incredible opportunity. ★

wise alumni – where are they now?

a conversation with Jeremy Pilloff

This fall we had the opportunity to sit down with alum and camp parent, Jeremy Pilloff. Once you get to know Jeremy you quickly learn that, for him, all roads lead from and to 13164 Taylor Wells Road. After spending his childhood summers at a variety of camps, his mother suggested that he get a job as a counselor at Camp Wise. That was back in 1987 when showering in Chalutzim meant leaving the cabin and traveling to a shower house where you had to pull a chain in order to get the water to flow! Oh, how times have changed.

One of Jeremy's many roles at Camp Wise was as a village supervisor. During his time as a supervisor, Jeremy learned that he loved working with people of all ages. He realized that helping kids solve their problems and make the right choices was going to be a significant part of his future. He took his skills to the JCC where he served a year as the youth director. During this time, he realized that his passion was not only working with children, but also working with a special needs population.

While Jeremy was in college he returned to work at camp in a special needs program called Ma'aseh. Ma'aseh was a four-week long vocational program for campers with special needs hosted at Camp Wise. Jeremy met a cute co-counselor, Julie, while working in the program. That summer Jeremy only worked for two weeks, while Julie was there for the full four weeks. Jeremy remembers that once he was back at home he made a mixed tape to send to Julie. Jeremy hoped that this would be a clear sign that he would like to date after the summer came to an end. It worked! Jeremy and Julie are just one of many married couples who met at camp and share a common love for all things Wise.

After college Jeremy accepted a teaching position with CEVEC (Cuyahoga East Vocational Education Consortium) where he has been ever since. As a teacher with CEVEC, Jeremy works with special needs students between the ages of 15-22. He and his colleagues teach skills students need to be successful as they seek employment and transition into adult life. CEVEC provides training in occupational skills, work behaviors, workplace social skills, and community survival skills. Jeremy's kids, as we fondly call them in the camp office, work on their skills while also supporting the JCC and Camp Wise with custodial help and mailing projects. When Jeremy reflects on his career and the path that led him there, it's clear that Camp Wise shaped who he is today. Jeremy said, "Being a supervisor at a young age at Camp Wise and assuming a leadership role helped me become a better teacher."

When school is out and it's time for summer vacation, Jeremy still finds his way back to Camp Wise. For the past decade Jeremy has been a lead staff member for Camp Chai. Camp Chai is a week-long program for adults with special needs hosted and led by Camp Wise. The campers that attend Camp Chai have the opportunity to experience all the best that Camp Wise has to offer. In fact, when we asked Jeremy what keeps him and his family coming back to camp each summer he said, "It's a great place to be. There are activities for everybody. Camp Chai campers just love it." One of the things that makes Jeremy's time at Camp Chai so special is that he gets to share it with his family. Jeremy's sons, Jacob and Justin, first experienced Camp Wise during Camp Chai, but as they grew older they couldn't help but ask to spend their summers at Wise. Actually, after Jacob's first summer he asked if there was a way he could stay longer. It was clear then, that Jacob and Justin, like their parents, would be Camp Wise "lifers".

Jeremy reflected on the past couple of decades saying, "It started off as my experience and now it's a family experience. It is a part of the fabric of our family. It gives me, as a parent, a lot of joy to see how much fun our children are having. They're getting those memorable moments and friendships. They are part of the shared experience that is Camp Wise." Jeremy loves that even though some of the traditions have changed, when Jacob and Justin come home from camp and talk about special times like Maccabiah, he knows what they are talking about because he lived it too.

Some of Jeremy's fondest memories revolve around Shabbat at camp. He remembers a special feeling, Friday nights in the chapel, Shabbat meals, close friendships, and a sense of spirituality. And how lucky for Jeremy that he gets to relive these memories every summer. Not only do his own children share their summer experiences, Jeremy creates new memories each August as he begins another week of Camp Chai. ★

the best of the best: the 2012 staff scholarship winners

Staff scholarship is the way that CW staff recognize one another for the outstanding work they do. Each summer, staff nominate their peers who go that extra mile, Camp Wise style. The individuals who are nominated are known for constantly being full of energy and enthusiasm, being there to lend a helping hand, and being a leader amongst the group. During the end-of-summer staff banquet an auction is held with donated items, like a set of tie-dyed bed sheets, an Israeli army uniform, or a night on the town in New York City, hosted by a staff member who attends school there. Auction proceeds are divided among the staff scholarship recipients.

This summer, there were six scholarship winners with a portion of the auction proceeds also going toward camper scholarship. This year's winners were: Becky Lord, Ryan Lahiff, Hannah Henschel, Pete Finnegan, Rachel Reinhardt, and Zoe Coleman.

This was Becky Lord's ninth summer at camp and her third as a counselor and it's no surprise that she was a staff scholarship recipient. Her dedication and care for her campers set the example for our younger staff of what it means to go above and beyond. Her ability to take on any task made her a leader among her peers and a go-to person for her supervisors. Her passion shines through everything she does and creates the same great experiences she had as a camper.

Residing in the UK, Ryan Lahiff is studying Sports Journalism at the University of Central Lancashire. Ryan joined the CW team in 2010 as the tennis specialist and couldn't resist coming back for two more summers as a counselor. This summer he demonstrated his programming skills as one of the judges for Alice in Wonderland Maccabiah.

In 2012 Hannah Henschel returned to Camp Wise in a new role as a teva (nature) specialist. When Hannah wasn't trekking through the woods teaching campers about nature, you could find her on stage during meals doing something wacky and crazy. Hannah was selected to be part of our prestigious Cornerstone Fellowship. As a part of this program, she and the other fellows created amazing Jewish themed all-camp programs.

Pete Finnegan just finished his first summer at Camp Wise but it seems like he has been here for much longer. He quickly emerged as a leader on our trips staff as he helped our campers and counselors navigate Mohican State Park as well as overnights at Anisfield and at our own backyard campsites. Pete also led his Kermit team to a win during Muppets Maccabiah!

Rachel Rinehardt, who attends NYU, is enthusiastic about everything she does. Her fun attitude and light-hearted spirit are contagious and the best place to find Rachel during the summer is hanging out with campers in the middle of the village. Whether she's cheering with her team as a Maccabiah captain or helping younger staff plan programming, there is sure to be a smile on Rachel's face. Campers beg to have Rachel as as their counselor!

As a lake specialist, Zoe Coleman could most often be seen teaching campers how to wakeboard and waterski. But when she wasn't splashing around the lake, she was probably dressing up in wacky costumes with her campers and teaching them new cheers and dances. After completing her first summer at camp, it's easy to understand why Zoe was best known for her crazy personality! ★
